

Bridging Society and University by Means of Appropriate Technology

Staff : Robert M.Z. Lawang
Students : -
Sponsors : -
Email contact : -

This article gives an example of how the application of micro hydro electricity at village level supports the social contributes a paradigmatic discussion on environment among treadmill of production, risk society thesis, environmental modernization and social constructionist. This article also underlines the need of interrelationship between environment to be developed for practical reasons, especially to bridge technological innovation in university and its application at village level for poverty reduction.

Keywords: Micro hydro electricity power, socio-techno organization, social constructionist
