Dear Participants,

The first half of the 21st century will be a crucial period for facing population aging. In Asia and the Pacific, the number of older people is growing rapidly, from 410 million in 2007 to about 733 million in 2025, and to an expected 1.3 billion in 2050. In terms of percentages, the older people will constitute about 15% of the total population in 2025 and up to nearly 25% by 2050, from over 10% now. Indonesia is the fourth most populous country in the world, and currently has the tenth largest population of elderly. In 2020, its number of older people will steadily increase to 28.8 million (11% of total population) while the under five population will gradually decrease in number.

Based on the above mentioned background, the National Commission for Older Persons Indonesia, in coordination with ACAP, CAS-UI and AIPi plan to conduct a meeting on Designing Age Friendly Community to enhance Ageing in Place. Experts from Southeast Asian Countries, other regions of Asia-Pacific, and Europe will share new trends and developments in Intergenerational Relationships, Aging in Place, Age Friendly City, Universal Design, Housing, Community Care, Family Care Giving, and International Migration for Elder Care, and other topics. Speakers will discuss how best-practices fit the economic and cultural situations of different Southeast Asian and East Asian countries as we all strive to Design Age Friendly Communities to enhance Aging in Place. The meeting will be held in conjunction with the International Day of Older Persons, which is October 1st.

All the participants will be able to attend International Conference on “The Population Aging Explosion: Opportunities and Challenges” on 12 October 2011, and Southeast Asian Countries and Active Aging Consortium Asia Pacific Meeting and Workshop on “Designing Age Friendly Communities to Enhance Aging in Place” on 13-14 October 2011.

We would like to thank to all collaborators and participants of the Conference and workshop. We do hope that results of this Conference will be benefited for policy recommendation, education and research development, to widen scientific knowledge and the implementation in various institutions regarding population aging explosion.

Warm regards,

H. Toni Hartono
Secretary General of NCOP

Prof. Kathryn Braun
President of ACAP

Prof. Tri Budi W. Rahardjo

BACKGROUND

The Demographic Transition led not just to changes in fertility and mortality regimes, but also to seminal changes in age structure. This was initially reflected in increases in the share of population in the more productive ages, but now, due to increased longevity in many parts of the developing world in increasing shares among the elderly. Thus, in almost every country the proportion of people aged over 60 years is growing faster than any other age group. For example, in 2010, of the 6.9 billion people in the world there were 759 million (11%) aged over 60 years and with 105 million (1.5%) aged 80 years or older. By 2050, it is projected that of the 9.1 billion people in the world, fully 2 billion (22%) will be over age 60 and almost 400 million (4%) over 80 years of age (UN, 2009, World Population Prospects, The 2008 Revision).

While the major impacts of aging are still much more of an immediate issue among richer and more developed societies, many middle income countries are currently poised to start catching up. And here, Indonesia and other middle income countries in the Asia region are no exception. Thus while the share of elderly (age 60+) is expected to grow by about 50% (22% to 33%) between 2010 and 2050 in the more developed regions, among the middle income and least developed countries it is expected to more than double, from about 9% to 20% and 5% to 11% respectively.

Dealing with population aging requires changes across all segments of society. There are the obvious implications for a variety of services such as health insurance and social security, as well as for development of suitable infrastructure and elderly-friendly living environments. But it will also require changes in the way society views a population that will not only live longer, but who will be healthier, more active, and more productive than their preceding generations. Society stands to benefit in many ways from the number of retirees who are active, healthy and independent with flexible time on their hands. Aging should not just be equated with challenges - decline, disability, and dependence. There are also potential opportunities arising from an aging population that need to be recognized and included in dealing with the aging process.

In addition, there is still only a limited awareness in government, civil society, as well as in the academic community in general of this impending trend. While population experts and some other social scientists are calling the attention of government about the future of the aging population, in reality the challenges are far broader and require much more multi-dimensional responses and solutions.

To help advance public knowledge and understanding of population aging, APII and ACAP plan to hold back to back conferences: The Population Aging Explosion: Opportunities and Challenges and Designing Age Friendly Communities to Enhance Aging in Place. These are intended to be occasions to bring together key stakeholders from academia, government, the business community along with members of civil society to discuss key issues and to see how those responsible for the delivery of key services can help ensure that older people continue to contribute to the general welfare of their respective communities as they live longer, healthier, and more active lives.

1. Poster

Participants of poster session should make their abstract sheet/content about 200 words in English and send it to cas\_ui@ui.ac.id/casui@yahoo.com cc.: vitapriantinadewi@yahoo.com, lindakusdhany@yahoo.com by the deadline. Participant of poster session could submit full paper as well. Deadline for submission is 30 August and will be published in Journal of Ageing and Development (as a special issued).

The material for poster session is needed to be brought with you on the conference day. You will be given the booth number at the reception of the conference, then please prepare the poster session both sealed with your booth number by yourself.

CONFERENCE and WORKSHOP OBJECTIVES

1. SEAC & ACAP Meeting and Workshop on Designing Age-Friendly Communities to Enhance Aging in Place

- * To improve understanding regarding strategies towards Age-Friendly Communities to Enhance Ageing in Place;
- * To improve the understanding about Active Aging concepts and implementation;
- * To explore and strengthen collaborations in research and design related to Age Friendly Communities and Ageing in Place; and
- * To propose recommendations about building Age Friendly Communities to Support Ageing in Place

2. Conference on: The Population Aging: Opportunities and Challenges

- * To bring together scientists and experts across the full range of scientific disciplines along with government, the business community and civil society to share and explore current issues and developments in population aging;
- * To stimulate discussions to improve the knowledge base and identify priorities for future research, action programs, and commercial development and to enhance informed policy and planning in anticipation of the future rapid growth among the elderly population;
- * To Identify key incentives that can help stimulate further research and development in addressing issues related to opportunities and challenges of population aging;
- * To bring the importance and imminence of impending rapid growth in the elderly population to the attention of government and to seek recommendations for action.

3. Working language shall be in English

PARTICIPATION

- These back-to-back Conference and Workshop will be attended by around 150 participants consisting of scholars, policy makers, business and civil society. The conference will be open to all 44 AIPI members, at least 20 ACAP members, other speakers as well as other participants who are interested in learning about broader issues in regard to opportunities and challenges in population aging. Also welcome are those who are interested in developing research proposals on Designing Age Friendly Communities and Cities, and others who are interested in Capacity Building for Care Giving.
- A number of Speakers will be invited through national academies of sciences cooperating with AIPI who may nominate up to two participants. They may choose to submit to speak in Session 2, 3, or 4 of the Conference on 12 October, and shall be selected based on a first come first serve basis or the proposed topic of presentation. The selected national academy representatives shall be provided with conference related local hospitality including accommodation (3 days/2 nights for Non AIPI Members). Non-AIPI Members shall be responsible for their own travel arrangements and for any personal expenses (e.g. telephone calls, bar items, laundry, etc.).
- Other specialists, including those coming from academia, government, the business community, or from among activists, may also receive personal invitations to speak and/or participate in this event.
- Opportunities for other speakers and poster presentations. Interested participant-speakers may choose to submit papers for presentation. Acceptance of a paper/presentation will be determined by a selection committee, whose decision will be final. These participants will have to pay for their own
- Depending on interests and topic of submitted abstracts, there is the potential for holding simultaneous meetings as break-outs with similar themes for Session 2, 3, or 4, of the Conference on 12 October 2011.
- Abstracts (maximum 500 words) and including identification of the chosen session should be submitted no later than 30 August 2011, to the Secretariat (address below); Acceptance notices will go out no later than 30 September 2011, with papers/presentations to be received no later than 1 October 2011.
- Full paper dateline 1 October 2011 and will be published in Journal of Ageing and Development (as a special issue).
- All participants of SEAC and ACAP Meeting are available to participate in AIPI Conference.

14:00 – 16:00 Session 3: Identifying Future Opportunities and Challenges of Population Aging

Setting an agenda for research and action is part of what needs to be done. But given the scope of the aging explosion, it also arguably requires a new perspective on how to treat the elderly not just as challenges or problems, but also as productive and contributing members of society and as a source of opportunities for new kinds of innovations to meet their needs.

This session will seek to look at some of the key future opportunities and challenges from the perspective of various actors, notably from academia, government, business and the private sector and from civil society. Invited and contributed papers will be sought from representatives among each of these key groups.

16:00 – 16:30 BREAK

16:30 – 18:00 Session 4: Incentives and Policies to Realize Opportunities and Challenges of Population Aging

It will be critical, particularly in rapidly demographically evolving countries like many of those in the Southeast Asia region, to start now to establish policies and strategies that will help empower society and address the needs of the elderly in the decades to come. This session will seek to create a discussion among a panel representing a variety of international and sectoral interests to discuss the kinds of direction and leadership, particularly from government, but also from other key actors in academia, business and civil society that will be required if these challenges are to be met and to make older age an opportunity rather than just a burden on society at large.

18:00 CLOSING

THE POPULATION AGING EXPLOSION: OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES

Tuesday, 11 October 2011

18:00 – 22:00 Conference Dinner and Opening

Keynote Address:

Chair : Prof. Sangkot Marzuki, Ph.D.

Speaker: Prof. Dr. Ing. BJ Habibie, AIPI Founder

Vice President, Republic of Indonesia (11 March 1998-21 May 1998);

and President, Republic of Indonesia (21 May 1998-20 October 1999)

Wednesday, 12 October 2011

08:00 – 08:30 Registration

08:30 – 10:30 Session 1: The Role of Science in Population Aging

Aging, like poverty, gender and the environment, is a cross-cutting issue, requiring the benefit of research and knowledge across a variety of sectors. In this regard, this session will be devoted to AIPI and will provide a forum for members of the various sections under the association to discuss the implications of a rapidly aging population in their areas of expertise. It will include presentations related to the roles of Basic Sciences, Health Sciences, Technology, Social Science, and Arts and Culture as well as possibly a few invited presentations on experiences in other countries.

11:00 – 13:00 Session 2: Providing for the Needs and Institutional Support for the Elderly

The expanding numbers of the elderly will require a broad range of services and new or strengthened institutions to meet their needs. Issues in this area cover both a broad range of sectors and a variety of actors ranging from academia, government, business and the private sector to local communities and civil society. Perhaps even more important is the state of current knowledge base, what it can tell us about the kinds of programs and institutions that are needed and what, if anything is currently being done.

The session will provide a forum for a discussion of basic needs and types of institutional support relevant to enhancing the lives of the elderly. The session will hopefully be able to draw on a range of knowledge and experience across countries and some key areas of concern such as health, social protection and legal protection as well as among both scientists and practitioners involved in program design and implementation

AGENDA

SOUTHEAST ASIAN COUNTRIES AND ACTIVE AGING CONSORTIUM ASIA PACIFIC MEETING AND WORKSHOP ON “DESIGNING AGE FRIENDLY COMMUNITIES TO ENHANCE AGING IN PLACE”

10-11 October 2011

Pre-Conference: Workshop on Scientific Writing for International Publication
Participants will have the capability to improve the quality of their manuscripts (based on data of their study and research) to be published in International Scientific Journals.

SEAC and ACAP Meeting and Workshop

Day 1: 13 October 2011

08.00 – 08.30 Registration

08.30 – 09.00 Morning Coffee

09.00 – 10.00 Opening sessions

* Committee Report:

Head of Centre for Ageing Studies, Universitas Indonesia

Secretary General of National Commission for Older Persons

* Welcome and Opening Remark:

- Governor of Bali Province

- Chairperson 2 of National Commission for Older Persons

- Professor Kathryn Braun - President of ACAP

- Professor Fasli Djalal - Vice Minister of National Education RI

10.00 – 10.30 Welcome Dance

10.30 – 12.30. Keynotes:

1. Dr. Makmur Sunusi: Director General for Social Rehabilitation, Ministry of Social Affairs RI (Policy and Implication of Age Friendly Community in Indonesia)
2. Professor Sarah Harper: Director of Oxford Institute of Ageing, University of Oxford UK (Changing Intergenerational Relationships in Europe and Asia)
3. Professor Hiroko Akiyama: Director of Center for Ageing, University of Tokyo, Japan (Redesigning Age Friendly Community 2030)
4. Professor Alfred Chan Cheung Ming: Director of Asia-Pacific Institute of Aging Studies, Hongkong (Ageing Policy Initiatives in Preparing for the Future Challenges)
5. Dr. Shun Ohno, Visiting Professor of Center for Southeast Asian Studies, Kyoto University (Former Director of Kyushu University Asia Center). “The Age of Transnational Care in Aging Societies: Extensive Explorations of Problems of Japan’s Acceptance of Indonesian and Filipino Nurses & Care Workers”
